Chairman's Budget News

The Commonwealth is now a third of the way through the 2019-20 fiscal year and our revenue growth has been strong year-to-date. Tax revenue has a year-to-date growth of 3.3% with Corporate Taxes growing at 1.8%, Sales Taxes growing at 5.9%, and Personal Income Taxes growing at 5.1%. While this is all good news, we need to be cautious about making future plans to spend more taxpayer dollars. The General Assembly needs to be wary about enacting legislation that could increase future costs to the Commonwealth.

One of the largest cost drivers in the General Fund budget has been the Department of Human Services. DHS costs have increased because of changing demographics in the state as the state population gets older and more seniors qualify for benefits. The DHS budget has also seen increased utilization of other programs such as physical and intellectual disabilities. Until needed reforms are enacted to help control the cost growth in DHS the General Assembly should be cautious of spending money on new programs in the state budget.

With the enactment of the 2019-20 fiscal year General Fund Budget, $317 million was deposited into the state's Rainy-Day Fund. This was a historic step for Pennsylvania, and it is something that we should seek to replicate in next year's budget. Our economy is strong, but at some unknown point in the future the economy has the possibility to enter into a downward trend. Pennsylvania needs to be prepared for that eventuality by saving today so that we don't need to raise taxes tomorrow.

On November 14th the Independent Fiscal Office will release their five-year outlook for the General Fund Budget. In December the Governor's Budget Office will present their mid-year update where they will provide more information about what next year's budget may look like. I believe it is important that we move forward in a cautious manner and focus on saving money not on spending more.
